

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed toward a photographic system wherein a subject is photographed from within a translucent bubble lit by light from outside the bubble. The bubble is adapted to provide a uniform background which can be digitally replaced after photographing.